

The author has first presented a general overview of International relations and then he has described its nature, its schools and its territory. He has then reviewed the political decision making on the domestic and international political issues, from Imam Khomeini's point of view and afterwards he has pointed his attention on the current system of international relations. In the end, the author has reviewed that how the ideas of Imam Khomeini have brought change and development in the international system.