The essence

One of the most important also most sensitive periods of Iran's history is the period of Baktyar prime ministry. Even though this period was so short by time but its events and consequences were very important and fatal. This dissertation's been written based on the theory of Chalmers Johnson systems /"Value Harmony". In this period [Baktyar's] role of the army, Leadership of the Revolution, and many layers of the dominant regime as well as foreign countries especially U.S are very important, each one of these components in its own turn played a noteworthy role in the process of revolution.

According to the theory of Johnson, the society of Iran was balanced until the year 1356 [of Iranian calendar]. But after this year in result of importations from foreign resources the social value system starts to dysfunction, [which in turn caused imbalance in social system too]. This social imbalance made the regime use suppression for controlling the country and so it lost its legality.

In a period like this elites can play a significant role, so that their agreeability and their attempt to reform could be a political solution to the crisis while disagreeability and stubbornness of them can worsen the situation. Shah by declaring formation of the national coalition government and appointment of Shapur Baktyar in fact showed disagreeability of the regime. The appointment of Baktyar who was of moderate number in Iranian politics was supported by U.S. The American authorities were trying to sustain [their] fatal sources of interests in Iran by appointing a moderate government.

But the the Idea of revolution under leadership of Imam Khomeini caused every opposition to finally accept the leadership of Imam and eventually he get recognised as the leader of revolution.

According to Johnson the above mentioned factors were the necessary factors in forming the revolution but a revolution to achieve victory needs enough factors as well which Johnson called them precipitation factors. For instance: insufficiency of the army to leash the revolution, passiveness of armed forces and declaration of impartiality of the army and lastly arrival of Imam to Iran can be of the precipitation factors in this dissertation.
