Abstract:

An argument regarding the axis and principle points of Iran's Islamic republic defensive policy that can examine the priorities of Islamic republic's policy seems to be beneficial and a key one. Undoubtedly political leaders play a fundamental role in formulating the defensive strategies of a country and their views are seen as a general charter of a political unit regarding the domestic and international systems practice.

The aim of this thesis is to examine defensive strategy regarding his Excellency Imam's political thought. One of the most important subjects that is noted in the area of strategy is the defensive one. In that direction the main question of this thesis is what is the place of basic rules and concepts that are of a religious-political nature negating the path with respect to unbelievers and the necessity of guarding identity and the entire place regarding health in his excellency Imam's defensive strategy?

That matter comprises a minor question and that is how international equations influenced his Excellency Imam's defensive strategy? Definitely Imam's defensive thoughts have a framework, system and comprehensive generality.

His Excellency Imam's ideas originate from his thoughts regarding various domains such as mysticism, philosophy, religious jurisprudence and Islamic sayings that have to do with beliefs. These thoughts axis is to protect Islam and the country based on the explanation and the drawing of Imam regarding international system and the world system. Meanwhile noting that he had a position that was based on a value and that had to do with the world system and the place of Muslims in the world and the Islamic world he founded the bases of Islamic revolution and noting that position that had to do with a value Imam in the beginning of the war that was forced upon the country believed that the goal was protecting Islam and the Islamic identity.

Through an excursion that is related to studying and precision regarding the works and the character sketch of his excellency Imam Khomeini looking deep at the bases of the political thoughts of that great one can delineate two major goals that are related to the defensive strategy of that great one and they are as follows: taking care of accomplishments of the Islamic revolution the land entirety of the Islamic republic, negating the dominance of foreigners and that has to do with the Islamic world and eliminating the forceful and violent domination and its penetration of them of Islamic countries. If we accept that Imam had a special view of the outside world and he protested against the kind of life that Muslims lived he searched for the solution through Islam; in order to start having the solution and in the practical scene he drew out a defensive strategy that included all aspects and that strategy is the strategic criteria of Iran's Islamic republic.
