

The study of political development in Iran from Imam Khomeini's point of view

Writer or Author: Bani Asadi, Masoud

Year: 2006

Abstract: The current thesis and research consists of an introduction and four chapters and conclusions. In the first chapter, the generalities of research, which include: the importance of research, the goals of the research, the research questions and assumptions, the scope of research, the method of research and organizing research.

In the next chapter, the framework and theoretical foundations of political development are presented, and then in the second chapter, the place of political development in the political thought of Imam Khomeini, as well as the principles of Imam Khomeini's political thought and the concept of freedom, are examined from his point of view.

Then in the third chapter, the obstacles to political development in Iran from the viewpoint of Imam Khomeini, which has always been his mind, is being examined.

And in the fourth chapter, the pattern of a developed political system from the perspective of Imam Khomeini and the role of the people and political parties and republicanism from his point of view is examined. The conclusion is also the end of this research, which analyzes the findings and presents the theoretical model of political development from the perspective of Imam Khomeini

Keywords: Imam Khomeini, development, politics, political thought, freedom, people, political parties, republican