Abstract:

The topic of strategy and decision-making is a basic one for the society's leaders and the managers of the organizations and the social systems.; and that is the most basic and the most one relating to the axis of the political leaders duties and that may lead to the defeat or the victory of the organizations o the social systems and therefor that is the center of gravity of management since without the guideline of the leaders in the societies an order kind of a step cannot be taken and the final and the principle goal cannot be achieved. Imam Khomeini through putting forward the theoretical and the practical strategies concerning the leadership field and they were based on two dimensions and one of them was the getting t know the subject of realism and the other one was sticking to the principles and the bases that had to do with the values (idealism and having the inclination towards what is right and thus he was able to do something so that the revolution was carried out. Considering the importance and the sensitivity of the macro decisions and the ones that are strategical within the social systems of this research I examine what I have in mind using a scientific- research related approach regarding the getting to know and the submission of the strategical decision-making models of Imam Khomeini (peace be upon him) in the period when there was a temporary government. This research has been organized in this way that that has four chapters: in the first chapter I express the generalities of this research. In the 2nd chapter I express the social and political situations of the passing time and the founding of the revolutionary political system. I examine in the third chapter the political strategy of Imam Khomeini within the temporary government. In the fourth chapter the political policy of the temporary government is examined.

Key words: Imam Khomeini (peace be upon him), the temporary government, the Islamic revolution, decision-making
