Abstract:

This thesis is comprised of two parts and they are what follows: the research part and the translation part.

The research part in addition to being a short circulation concerning the book and introducing the writer and some of his works has three chapters and their titles are what follows: the mystic experience according to the contemporary individuals that do research regarding agnosticism , the inner according to his Excellency Imam Khomeini (peace be upon him) and the proportion of the mystic experience and the inner , according to Imam Khomeini.

In the second chapter Imam Khomeini's (peace be upon him) views regarding the inner in an extensive way is mentioned and in the third chapter I compare those views and the mystic experience. The book named Mysticism: research and the selection of the works has been written by F. C.Hapulad and he is one of the contemporary individuals doing research about agnosticism.

After introducing generally agnosticism in the first part he mentions a selection of the works of the different religion's agnostics in the second part of the book. The writer's method with respect to the research part is a descriptive-analytical one and an effort has been made to examine as much as possible the views that are put forward in the area of the agnostic experience and the inner.

In the translation part an effort has been made to transmit the concepts correctly using Farsi language at the same time as being bonded to the text.
