Abstract:

Life is a subject and that is an easy one and also a hard one; that is easy if that life is lived according to a natural procedure and also that is influenced by a healthy self since that goes along with the development of an urban life, the communications, the technology and a hundred of other problems and therefor the management of the today's family requires the obeying of a model and that should be in the family scene. Imam Khomeini did not read the classic western management but he believed that the management principles come from Islam and they have been gotten from the charatcer sketch and also the Hddiths of those who are from the house and also the generous Quran and he implemented the principles and he placed the bases that can be paid attention to by the families and that has to do with the leadership and the management of the family.

Imam Khomeini has been successful with respect to the resourcefulness that he had in his home and the resourcefulness that he had regarding his inner and the cities. This research is after expressing Imam Khomeini's role regarding his management of his family (and at home) briefly.

This chapter has one chapter and also it has the generalities and four parts and according to the main management principles (they are Islamic) have been regulated. It is hoped that that may be followed and that may be acquired from whatever there are for the families and those who obey Imam Khomeini.
